Competitive Analysis

Direct competitors are budgeting and personal finance apps. Indirect competitors are ADHD apps that serve our audience but not their money. · AI Development Residency, Fall 2026

Competitor	What they do well	Where they fall short for ADHD users	Gap our app fills
YNAB Budgeting · $14.99/month	Strong method and forgiving language; the only major app that markets to ADHD users	Steep learning curve and a 20 to 30 minute setup; falling behind causes catch-up overwhelm	A low-effort mode and a guilt-free reset after a lapse
Monarch Personal finance · paid, 7-day trial	A complete picture of every account; planning together as a couple	Dashboards, charts and reports can overwhelm; no ADHD-specific design	One clear "safe to spend today" number in a calm view
Rocket Money Personal finance · free + Premium	Catches forgotten subscriptions; low-balance alerts; useful free tier	Help mostly comes after the money is spent; core tools sit behind Premium	Help in the moment, before a purchase
Copilot Money Personal finance · $7.92/month	Award-winning visual design; strong automation	Apple only; no free tier; built for detail-minded users who track investments	Android support and a calmer single-number view
EveryDollar Budgeting · free + $79.99/year	Free tier; simple setup; clear debt payoff guidance	The free tier needs daily manual entry; built around one strict method	A flexible, non-judgmental approach
PocketGuard Budgeting · free + paid	Closest to our "safe to spend" idea; simple to start; 4.6 App Store rating	No guilt-free reset, focus mode or pause before buying	Recovery after a lapse and a pause before impulse buys
Tiimo (indirect) ADHD app · free + Pro	Calm, visual design neurodivergent users trust; iPhone App of the Year 2025	No money features; streaks and rewards can feel punishing after a missed day	Money management, with no streaks
Inflow (indirect) ADHD app · price not listed	Science-based ADHD education from clinicians	Coaching and education rather than a daily tool; no money features	Practical, daily money tools

No current app pairs money tools with ADHD-first design

Feature	YNAB	Monarch	Rocket Money	PocketGuard	Tiimo	Our app
Safe-to-spend number	Partial	–	–	Yes	–	Yes
Automatic bill detection	Partial	Yes	Yes	Yes	–	Yes
Reset after a lapse	Partial	–	–	–	–	Yes
Pause before purchase	–	–	–	–	–	Yes
ADHD-first design	Partial	–	–	–	Yes	Yes

Partial: YNAB targets ADHD users but needs regular upkeep. A dash means the feature is not shown on the company's website.

Takeaway

Money apps have the tools but not ADHD-first design. ADHD apps have the design but no money tools. Our edge is both, plus a guilt-free fresh start and a pause before buying, which no competitor offers.

Sources: each company's own website, October 2026; YNAB, Budgeting with ADHD; Avery Burk, "The Budget App That Might Save Your Bank Account," Neurospicy Nom Noms, December 2025. Customer claims and ratings come from the companies themselves, not independent reviews. Full 11-column analysis on the project FigJam board.